

NSG 3100 Exam 3

2022(Verified Answers by Expert)

1. Obtaining a capillary blood specimen to measure blood glucose, you should ✓✓✓✓ ensure there is good blood flow at the puncture site

2. True or False

When testing for fecal occult blood, a green color indicates a guaiac positive result. ✓✓✓✓ False

3. A RN instructing a female patient on obtaining a clean catch urine specimen should stress to ✓✓✓✓ Void a small amount of urine before collecting the specimen

4. The client has an indwelling catheter. The nurse should obtain a sterile urine specimen by ✓✓✓✓ using a syringe to withdraw urine from the catheter tubing port

5. An x-ray of the abdomen visualizing the kidneys, ureters and bladder is known as ✓✓✓✓ KUB

6. What is an echocardiogram? ✓✓✓✓ Visualization of the structures of the heart by using ultrasound

7. What does MRI stand for? ✓✓✓✓ Magnetic Resonance Imaging

8. Thoracentesis is removal of fluid from ✓✓✓✓ pleural space

9. While assisting with a thoracentesis the nurse should do all of the following EXCEPT ✓✓✓✓ Have the patient cough periodically during the procedure

10. A noninvasive method of estimating bladder volume would be ✓✓✓✓ Bladder Scanner

11. Your urine should smell ✓✓✓✓ aromatic

12. What is a normal urine output per hour? ✓✓✓✓ 30 mL

13. Urge incontinence is due to ✓✓✓✓ an overactive bladder

14. Stress incontinence is when ✓✓✓✓ urine leaks when you laugh, cough or sneeze

15. The presence of ketones in the urine indicates ✓✓✓✓ rapid breakdown of fat

16. The nurse who teaches a client about preventing UTIs would include which statement? ✓✓✓✓ Void immediately after sexual intercourse

17. How much space should you leave from the tip of the penis and the drainage tube when applying a condom cath? ✓✓✓✓ 1 Inch

18. The nurse understands that a straight catheterization ✓✓✓✓ empties